

Sample Match-Making System for Organizing Boxing Day

- 1 - At Check-in, boxers present their USAB member ID # and weigh in
- 2 - Once a boxer is verified, their information is recorded in an event database
- 3 - An index card (Boxer Event Check-in Card) is created for the boxer, with name, age, weight, experience, max. length of round, club, and coach name. The card is given to the boxer or coach.

Example of hand-written Check-in Index Card. Boxer Name, USAB member number, age, weight, number of bouts experience, and the maximum length of rounds, gym name, and coach name.

Photo shows cards being pinned on a bulletin board mounted to the ring. In this LBC, the cards were color-coded for coaches — green card was for boxers with no experience, blue for boxers with 1-9 bouts experience, white for open boxers, and yellow for master’s boxers. The pink cards were the sparring match numbers.

- 4 - When coaches make a match, they pin (or tape) their boxer’s card on the board (or wall) of the ring in which they wish to spar, in the order in which they wish to spar (the cards will go next to the corresponding Sparring Match-up Card). This system allows the boxers to keep up with the progress of the sparring.

Sparring Match-up Card can be used as a placeholder for the sparring match. The boxer’s names, member #s, and bout information can then be written by the ring manager, as a report of the match-up.

- 5 - When the boxers enter the ring, the ring manager removes the relevant cards from the board.
- 6 - When a boxer finishes sparring, the ring manager can mark each boxer’s Index Card to indicate the number of rounds they sparred. The Boxer’s Index Card is then returned to the boxer or coach, or placed in a “pool” of eligible boxers. (In case of suspected injury, the card is given to the Supervising Doctor.)
- 7 - With the cards back in their possession, the boxer and coach are able to make another sparring matchup.
